

POBTBY.

THE OLD TURNPIKE.

We hear no more the clinging hoof, And the stage coach rattling by; For the steam.king rules the traveled world, And the old Pike's left to die. The grass creeps o'er the flinty path, And the stealthy dairies steal, Where once the stage horse, day by day,

No more the weary stager dreads The teil of the coming morn; No more the bustling landlord runs At the sound of the echoing horn; For the dust lies still upon the road, And bright eyed children play, Where once the clattering hoof and wheel

Lifted his iron heel.

Rattled along the way.

No more we hear the cracking whip, Or the strong wheels rumbling round;-Ah ha, the water drives us on , And an iron horse is found! The coach stands rusting in the yard, And the horse has sought the plow;

We have spanned the world with an iron rail And the steam king rules us now! The old Turnpike is a pike no more, Wide open stands the gate;

Which we ride at a flying rate. We have filled the valleys and leveled the hills, And tunneled the mountain's side; And round the rough crag's dizzy verge; Fearlesely on we ride!

On-on-on-with a haughty front! A puff, a shrick, and a bound; While the tardy echoes wake too late, To babble back the sound; And the old Pike-road is left alone, And the stagers sought the plow; We have circled the Earth with an iron rail, And the steam king rules us now:
